3. Communications
6. Director’s Report
Anita Maxwell commented that a new heat pump has been installed in the main exhibit space at the Tongass Historical Museum. It is helping to modulate the temperature in that area. She also reported that the Museum’s Alaska virtual conference has been happening the past two weeks and most of the staff has been able to participate in that. There has been an incredible surge in donations and research requests. Kudos to Hayley Chambers and Erika Brown for all their work in Collections. Anita also reported that the Totem Heritage Center was the featured museum to the Taste of History virtual tour today. The live event on Facebook will be uploaded later to the Museum’s web site.

Laurie Pool commented that she liked the new format that included the Strategic Plan and current updates. She also commented that she is concerned with the current HVAC and fire suppression system at the Tongass Historical Museum. She is worried that the system won’t last until 2024 when it is tentatively scheduled to be replaced. Anita replied that the city will continue to band aid issues with the system due to the budget. The doors and windows must be replaced before a new HVAC system is installed. She commented that the Museum will continue to pursue grant opportunities to purchase and install a few more heat pumps upstairs.

Michele Zerbetz-Scott commented that she liked the addition of the Strategic Plan to the board packet also. She indicated that it is a great way to continue to track the Museum’s accomplishments.

Gloria Burns reported that KIC may be able to get a grant through the American Rescue Plan. Because KIC doesn’t not have their own museum, they may be able to collaborate with the museums that house tribal artifacts.

7. Mission Moment: Museums as Community Spaces
Anita reported that the Museums have hosted a variety of private events such as Herman Ludwigson’s Wright Brothers’ Award and the unveiling of artwork honoring Irene and Nettie Jones. The Museums have been approached by several organizations to use the program/community space. Organizations such as the Wellness Coalition and the American Legion. Anita asked the Museum Advisory Board members what were their thoughts on how to appropriately use the community space.

Carrie Starkey encouraged reaching out to the Chamber of Commerce to get the word out and to bring people in.

Michele commented that she would like to see the Museum draft up a set of protocols for building/room usage.

Chet Hugo replied that he agreed with the drafting of protocols. He would like to see the groups/meetings in line with the mission and goals of the Museums. If the group requesting use of the space doesn’t meet this criteria, the Museums have a way to say no without being the bad guys.

Janalee Gage also commented that most public places have some type of usage agreement and she would support that.

Laurie inquired about how taxing it would be to staff if outside groups started using the community space. She is wondering if it would be feasible to charge for staff time. Anita replied that she would like to see this space be used as a safe space for community outreach and would like to be as generous as possible since the majority of these users are tax payers and are already supporting the Museums. She would consider charging should the room be used outside of regular business hours and extra staff hours are needed.

7. New Business
b. 2022: Budget, cruise ship predictions and planning for next year
Anita gave a brief reflection of the 2021 cruise ship season. Although cruise ship passengers visitors were way down this year, staff has enjoyed the increase in independent travelers this summer. The projected 2022 cruise ship schedule shows an average of 3-5 ships a day, with Friday having 6-7 ships. Anita has submitted the proposed 2022 Museum budget to the Finance department. The only requested increase to next year’s budget is for additional tour guides. In the past, the Museums have hire up to seven part-time tour guides. With the projections for next year, the Museum would need at least seven full-time tour guides. In addition, in order to be competitive, she has requested that the pay be increased to $16 an hour, up from $14.50. Other comparable positions start at over $18 an hour. All of these additional cost increases would be offset by increased revenue from more visitors, and would not occur should the projections for next year not actually happen.

Anita reported that Marni Rickelmann just reached her four year anniversary and Erika Jayne Christian reached two years. With the absence of a Program Assistant for over a year, the two-person staff at the Totem Heritage Center is barely treading water. In addition to their regular workload, staff has had to learn new technology and adapt to new ways to conduct their programs. They are constantly being interrupted, on average 30+ times a day. Staff has had to change their working hours, including working nights and weekends. Anita reiterated that the Museums have to fill this vacancy and she working the City Manager’s office to get this position back into next year’s budget.
The city departments were asked to only budget for “vital” Capital Improvement projects for 2022. Anita feels that it is vital that the Totem Heritage Center have a second accessible exit so she has asked for the back ramp at the Totem Heritage Center be rebuilt. The rotten original ramp has already been removed. This ramp is vital for the flow and safety of the visitors, especially if the projected visitor numbers happen next summer.

Anita reported that the draft budget is currently at Finance and will move on the City Manager’s office before being presented to the City Council at the end of November. Changes to the draft budget may still occur anywhere in this process. In addition, she commented that the Museum is always looking at various grants.

Sven Westergard asked where the money would go if the Museum did charge to use the program/community space. Would it go into the City’s General Fund? Anita responded that those funds do go in the general fund.

Michele asked about the current Admission prices. Anita commented that she has looked at other museums of similar size and she feels that the Museums fall into the upper range of the admissions scale. When she started the price of admission was $1. It was increased to $3 and then increased again to the current rate of $6. She feels like this may be the tipping point for some visitors.

Peter Stanton commented that his personal view is that the Museums could increase up to around $10 with all the renovations and updated displays. Michele concurred with Peter’s comments.

Janalee commented that when she visited the Smithsonian the charge was $20, or whatever you could pay. She agrees with Peter that the cost could go up.

Gloria replied that she has worked as a tour guide and taken money at both facilities and she has seen first-hand the number of people who see the admission charges and turn around and walk away. She worries that the people who are not willing to pay the admission rates would increase with a rate increase, and that most of these visitors are the ones that would benefit from visiting the Museums and learning more about the culture of the place they are visiting.

Chet asked if it would be possible to put out a donation box for the new HVAC system. Anita commented that a donation box could be installed.

Laurie asked if the room usage fee could be an encouraged donation. If that might help to offset operating costs.

Michele asked about the Museum’s fundraising capabilities.

Anita cautioned the Board to rely on fundraising. She does not want to set a precedence that the Museum can fend for themselves, which may encourage reduced funding from the City. She did reiterate that she feels grant funding is the best way to supplement the regular budget. Anita commented that Karl Amylon was an advocate for the Museums and the Library. He believed that the Museums and Library were just as vital to the community as other Departments.

Laurie agreed with Anita’s commented regarding Karl and added that he was instrumental in getting the funding for the renovation.

Jeanne Sande commented on the admissions fees. She has observed during her time volunteering in the hospital gift shop that it’s practical, and sometime easier, for someone to pay $10 instead of $9. Then they don’t have to deal with change.

Anita replied that more and more people are paying by card so cash money and change are not an issue.
Carrie commented that the people who walk away are walking away from the admission charge in general and not necessarily the increase.

Alex Kramarczuk indicated that he is not in favor of an admission increase. He believes that a $1-$2 increase could turn people away and that the Museums need to be accessible. He would encourage other ways to generate additional revenue.

Chet reiterated that local visitors are not charged admissions and that only out-of-town visitors would be affected by a price increase.

Janalee asked if the Museum would be hosting the gingerbread houses again during the December art walk. Anita replied that this event is sponsored by the Peace Health Foundation and we are just the space they have used the past couple of years. Janalee and Gloria would like to recommend this year’s gingerbread house theme be centered around the Herring Protectors from Sitka. This would be a great introduction to the January exhibition of the Herring Protectors robes, as well as educating the community with a basic understanding of what the Herring Protectors are doing.

At this point, the Chair went back to Item 3. Communications, c. Recognition of Borough representative Sven Westergard. Michele offered a hearty thank you for all of Sven’s efforts during his time on the Museum Advisory Board. Sven commented that he loves the history of this town and the Museums.

8. Advisory Board Comments:
Peter commented that he is anxious with the budgeting process and the prep for next year’s visitors. He encouraged everyone to keep advocating for the Museums.
Laurie reported that she recently visited a museum in New Mexico. She attended a fundraiser for that museum and she noticed how a lot of museums are struggling. She commented that the Museum here is lucky to have the staff and resources that they do. Overall, the Museums are in good shape comparatively.
Gloria commented that she appreciated how responsive staff was with the Irene and Nettie Jones presentation. Museum staff said yes at the last minute and was able to assist with getting everything set-up. She commented that the Museum has some of the best staff and to continue to advocate for them.
Alex echoed everyone’s comments. He would also like to participate on the group that works to create the policies and procedures for using the Museums for special events.
Teri Hoyt commented that it might be worth looking into charging Locals $1. Also look at giving visitors the additional option of donating to a new HVAC.
Chet commented that he liked the idea of charging locals; they may value it more if they have to pay. He asked if there was need for the advisory board to address the City Council regarding the proposed budget. Anita replied that it would be better to wait and see what happens with the budget while going through Finance and the City Manager’s office and what their concerns are. Chet agreed and also commented that, if needed, one member could address the council with the board’s concerns. Chet also reported that twice he brought guests in during the summer and he is proud to be a part of the Museums.
Janalee commented that, with the conversation of charging the locals, she would encourage looking at some type of family pass like Totem Bight sells. She also commented that she was amazed at the Irene Jones project and would like to see more of these types of social justice stories as part of the walking tour.
Carrie commented that the staff at the Museum is amazing and she would like to see more opportunities to network. Jeanne thanked the Museum for hosting the Ketchikan at the Fair exhibit. She emphasized that local exhibits bring locals in to the Museum.
Sven encourage the board and staff to keep on doing the amazing work, and to think outside of the box.
Michele commented that it was nice to see everyone.

The following notes were submitted by Teri Hoyt in writing after the meeting due to a bad internet connection:

“I would like to add a couple comments, as chiming in was impossible for me yesterday.

Public use of the meeting rooms at the museums is vital to keep Ketchikan residents connected to these amazing facilities. Great idea that there was a display of quilts from the fair. That brought locals in who may not have otherwise visited the building. Education is at the top of the list for one of the missions of our museums, and I continue to support the active tours of school groups utilizing these buildings! Additionally, how about hosting boy scouts, youth court, and other groups, maybe for a small fee? There could be a gathering of folks for Elizabeth Peratrovich Day, or for the day recognizing the missing indigenous people? I know some of these gatherings have occurred in the past.

I think it is time to start charging locals a small fee for entry to the museums. Most people understand the challenges of the cost of maintenance and staffing etc, and would, (should) be happy to pay. Maybe a dollar a person, or a dollar a family as Chet mentioned. I agree with Peter, our fees are low compared to many museums I have visited down south. Also, if it is not already in place, I believe the donation box should be out in the lobbies of both museums. How about asking visitors “would you like to donate one dollar to help fund HVAC”, or whatever? Safeway has buttons to help groups get donations when one uses a card while making purchases. If the opportunity to donate a little more is presented to people, it may bring in a bit more money.

Good job to the staff for making the most of the limited tourist season this year, way to be adaptable! Next year sounds very busy, and I agree that additional help will be needed for the staff, and a higher wage will help attract quality people to guide visitors through the museums.

Lastly, I hope to thunder we can meet in person on November 16th, if our risk level is lower. I’m on the Ketchikan Area State Parks Board and we have been meeting in person throughout the Covid crisis....properly masked and distanced of course. I really miss the Museum Mid-Day events, and visiting with everyone at our meetings.

I believe a lot more can be accomplished by the board and staff actually meeting together for brainstorming, working toward our shared goals. Thank you for taking the time to read my thoughts. Enjoy this first day of autumn.”
